SELLING PUMPKINS FOR CHARITY

Four-year-olds Aiden Maldonado, left, and Jackson Magnus enjoy a crisp autumn day on a haystack Oct. 21 at Wyoming Presbyterian Church's Annual Pumpkin Patch. Proceeds from the pumpkins sold will go toward the Elizabeth Coalition to House the Homeless, based out of Elizabeth, and Living Waters for the World, based out of Tennessee. North Carolina-based "The Pumpkin Patch" supplies pumpkins to the church. The pumpkins are grown on land leased from and in partnership with the Navajo Indian Reservation in Farmington, N.M.
